

ATTENTION TO LOGISTICS

INTRODUCING: ATTENTION TO LOGISTICS

The Attention to Logistics training programme and bursary scheme has been created to specifically focus on the veteran community, helping ex-servicemen, women and their families back into work through the logistics sector.

Delivered by Tilbury on the Thames Trust in association with the Port of Tilbury Logistics Academy, the bursary and facilities will create tailored opportunities for veterans to develop their skills and potential.

The Port of Tilbury is expanding and significant warehouse investments are being made in the Thames Gateway, the number of jobs in the Port alone is projected to increase from 3,500 to 9,000. The Attention to Logistics Programme will create improved pathways to these new opportunities for veterans and their families, whose military links make them well suited for careers in logistics.

ATTENTION TO LOGISTICS COURSE IN PARTNERSHIP WITH EMR

EMR is one of the world's leading metal recyclers. Developed from a single business in Rochdale, we now have over 170 operational sites worldwide and employ around 4,000 people. We recycle around 10 million tonnes of metal each year which contributes to the saving of over 10 million tonnes of CO2 compared to using virgin materials.

We have a diverse range of career opportunities, including HGV drivers, site operatives, operational managers, safety and environmental managers, engineers, accounting and finance experts, shipping and logistics professionals.

Without the commitment from our employees, we would not be able to offer the levels of service and quality that make us an industry leader. That's why we strive to make full use of our employees' skills and abilities. At EMR we have a positive and motivated working environment of loyal and long-serving industry experts.

We have regular career and job opportunities arising in over 70 EMR facilities and offices across the UK. Join us on our quest to be the global leader in the provision of sustainable materials.
